

Making an impact

At Boston Community Capital we are driven by the desire to “move the needle” in the communities in which we work. Measuring our impact on the health of the community is a key measure of our success.

Going Above and Beyond

We seek to go beyond simply tracking what was built with the dollars we've invested, to get to the unique role we have played and the community change we have supported. We collect robust information about our lending and the communities we serve which allows us to understand the answers to three key questions:

What are we doing to build healthy communities where low-income people live and work?

Who benefits from our products, from our services, and from our policy work?

How well are we achieving our goals and the goals of our partners and stakeholders?

Coast-to-coast impact

Since 1985, BCC has invested more than $1 billion to support organizations and businesses that benefit underserved communities across the US. Analysis of our activities in these communities allows us to:

- ✓ Capture the unique value of a CDFI's role in the communities in which we work
- ✓ Spur innovation in the development of new markets, networks, instruments and new ways to connect to resources
- ✓ Expand the capital available in low-income communities, beyond providing a method for the re-allocation of capital
- ✓ Support evaluation, marketing, capitalization and policy formation.
